Jerusalem: (Jewish Correspondence Bureau): On Thursday at 3 p. m., High Commissioner Samuel received a delegation of American Jews, including Harry Fischel, president of the Hebrew Immigrant Aid Society and Rabbi Teitelbaum, president of the Palestine Building and Promotion Company of America. Samuel expressed his pleasure at the readiness of rich Jews to invest money in Palestine and advised that the most urgent needs of the country today were house building and the founding of a mortgage bank. He declared that the construction of several thousand houses was a most pressing need. Later, the High Commissioner received Rabbi Teitelbaum alone and discussed the detailed plan of the Palestine Building and Promotion Company with him for a length of thirty-five minutes.
